MID-WINTER BBQ – THE POEM

Kit Freudenberg offered her skills at poetry at an earlier meeting. The written version is shared for your enjoyment:

Ode to the whiskey

Where did all the whiskey go?

At dawn's early light, Greg and Bob began
 Stoking pits and arranging pans
 My part was easy: deliver a grill
 At 6:45 am that wasn't a thrill
 The chill in the air
 Did not stop the volunteers there

By 3 pm, Ryan, in charge of side dishes
 Had Chadwigen making other wishes
 To be done filling up 160 cups each
 Howland slaw, Me beans and Gary the peach
 Did the potato salad – nothing rhymes with potato salad, sorry.

Connie, the sauce wench, kept 3 men hopping
 Squirting BBQ – there was no stopping
 The set up crew under Stan's direction
 And the kitchen staff did the grand production
 Two Larry's with knives like Sweeney Todds
 Sliced ribs with no bleeding allowed

Others manned the door and let in folks
 This good food was not a hoax
 The ribs and wings were so good
 Carried in from the pit by Bill Lockwood
 Served by Jo, Rita, Tom, Roger, Nancy and Dan
 Jim, two Bills – hot from the pan

Ribs, glorius ribs were piled on high
 Grateful eaters gave a sigh
 A few observations before I go –
 Bibs and caps are not good looks for me
 On Greg and Gabe, very pretty
 But the one thing I saw –
 And truly I'm in awe
 Was Browning's great skill with carrying 6 beers
 Getting through the door

And maybe, just maybe that explains where the whiskey went!
